

Company History

Founder Marlo Gertz always loved baking as a child and grew up making cookies, brownies & big messes in the kitchen on a regular basis. Her Russian grandmother, Ann, was always an avid baker too, and excelled in making addictive twice-baked cookies from a secret recipe. What made her cookies special was the textural departure from traditional Italian biscotti which are also baked twice.

Grandmom's cookies still delivered the expected and satisfying crunch of classic biscotti yet retained a more tender crumb so the cookies wouldn't 'break your teeth!'.

After several decades, this recipe was passed down to Marlo as she was finishing her professional pastry education and working in Advertising Technology. Excited about the prospect of leaving the world of software for baking, Marlo decided to open a business to share Grandmom's cookies with the masses. Marlo's Bakeshop, LLC officially launched in San Francisco, CA in 2012.
